Divey Foundation is about her profound belief that as we grow in life, how we pay back to society is very important and we as a nation are as good as our most unprivileged people. We can't build 21st Century India, by leaving people from rural India and urban slums, on government efforts & support alone to improve their lives. The skill development , which results in employability , especially for women and the poor is the most laggard. The industry and successful personalities should actively contribute towards bringing underprivileged children into the national mainstream. Divey Foundation is an attempt to provide basic education and skills to the children living in urban slums of Delhi. It provides skills to women & children for making and selling handicraft products in the market. We work for protection of women against domestic violence, by educating them about their rights, providing them legal, medical and mental support in case of crisis.
